Joy by George Winston:
This instrumental piece evokes a sense of serenity and uplift, reflecting the spirit of hope and unity central to a Peace Pole dedication, where the focus is on fostering inner and communal peace.

Somewhere Over the Rainbow: Israel "Izi" Kamakawiwo'ole
The song's longing for a better, more harmonious world mirrors the aspirations expressed by the Peace Pole, symbolizing hope for a peaceful future.

Wonderful World: Israel "Izi" Kamakawiwo'ole
With its celebration of everyday beauty and human kindness, this song underscores the appreciation of life's simple joys and the interconnectedness that peace brings.

Let There Be Peace on Earth: Jill Jackson
Explicitly calling for global harmony and personal responsibility in creating peace, this hymn is a direct musical embodiment of the Peace Pole's message and is traditionally played at such ceremonies.

Blowin' in the Wind: Bob Dylan
Bob Dylan's classic poses questions about freedom, justice, and peace, resonating with the Peace Pole's invitation to reflect on what is needed for peace to prevail.

Hallelujah: Rufus Wainwright
Leonard Cohen's song, often interpreted as a meditation on grace and reconciliation, invites contemplation and unity, fitting the reflective tone of a peace dedication.

We Are the World: USA for Africa
This anthem of global solidarity and collective action highlights the importance of coming together for the common good, echoing the Peace Pole's call for unity among all people8.

Amazing Grace: Susan Boyle
A timeless hymn of forgiveness and transformation, "Amazing Grace" speaks to the possibility of renewal and peace within individuals and communities.

Imagine: John Lennon
John Lennon's vision of a world without barriers or conflict aligns directly with the Peace Pole's ideals, making it a powerful and aspirational choice for the ceremony.

A Special Thank you to Rochester Rotarian Stacey Steinmiller who helped curate the songs listed